- Please note that all of these issues are late.

- Each journal goes through an extensive evaluation process before being selected or rejected for coverage.

Nancy Thornton, Editor, Editorial Development,

- Many factors are important in selecting a journal for coverage.
- Overall content, format, citation data, and our present coverage of the discipline are but a few of the guidelines used to evaluate a
- I strongly recommend the essay on the selection process at:
- In general, we need to review a minimum of 3 consecutive on-time issues of a journal, received as and when they are published, to complete an evaluation.
